WEEKLY RECORD LEADER DAILY PUBLICATION

One little simple song we sing,
To birds but newly wed;
Just make the best of everything,
Especially, the bread.

JUNE MARRIAGES FALL OFF.

A glance over the record of marriage licenses issued during the months of June, 1914, and June, 1915, shows a material reduction in the number of licenses issued. In June, 1914, County Clerk James Owens gave thirty-three couples the "scrap of paper" that permits them to become man and wife. This year, for some unknown reason, possibly the war or the "high cost of living or loving," only nineteen licenses have been granted. The county officials that are allowed to marry couples have also been rudely awakened to the state of affairs, for of the nineteen licenses issued only seven have been married by the officers of the commonwealth. It is rumored that the officials will league together and form a research organization to find the cause of the trouble.

ELKS INITIATE LARGE CLASS.

The local lodge of Elks, No. 701, on Wednesday evening initiated a large class of candidates into the mysteries of Elkdom. Nearly twenty candidates took the ride on the goat and after the ceremony a delicious banquet was served to members of the lodge. Within the next few weeks another class equally as large as the one on Wednesday night will be given the ritual.

The local chapter of Elks is fast growing too large for its present quarters and rumors are in the air that a handsome new home will be erected in the near future on the site of the old St. Charles hotel building.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Edwin Kosche, aged 30, and Gussie Voss, aged 31, both of Cincinnati, were granted a marriage license by County Clerk James Owens Wednesday. They were married later by Rev. John Barron, pastor of the Presbyterian church.

Elmer J. Hughes, aged 22, and Tillie B. Jones, both of the county, were granted a marriage license by County Clerk James Owens. They were later married by County Judge W. H. Rice.

SUCCESSFUL DANCE.

The dance at the Neptune Hall Wednesday evening, given by Messrs. Joseph Ennis and William Heffernan, was a success in every manner. Over 100 were in attendance and spent an enjoyable evening. The Pastime Orchestra furnished excellent music for the dancers.

FOR CHAUTAUQUA VISITORS.

Owing to the fact that there will undoubtedly be many out-of-town people here from the surrounding countryside during Chautauqua week, commencing Thursday, who are in need of the services of an expert optometrist and optician, Dr. T. Kahn, O. D., of Cincinnati, who has been coming to Maysville twice a week the past several months, will, with his son, also an expert optician, be here at his offices in the O'Keefe building every day this week and all of next week, at the services of those who wish to consult them as to their eye needs. During this Chautauqua period examinations will be free charge for glasses reasonable.

LOOK WHO'S HERE.

This morning the three barbers employed in H. O. Gray's Barber Shop made their debut in suits of spotless white. This is one of the many features Mr. Gray has installed since he opened a barber shop in this city several years ago. His constant aim is to please his customers and give them the best there is. Sanitation is the motto of this shop, and Mr. Gray's efforts along that line are to be commended.

MASON COUNTY HEALTH LEAGUE HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Mason County Health League was held on Wednesday in two sessions. The first at the Elks Hall, on Court street, at 2 o'clock, and the second at 8 o'clock in the evening at Beechwood Park. Owing to a hurry call, Miss Anna M. Casey, the health nurse, was unable to deliver her report upon the year's work at the afternoon session, but at the evening session read a very interesting paper which thoroughly covered the Health League's affairs during the past year.

Dr. J. R. Cooper was called to Cincinnati and was unable to deliver his address on "The Health League from a Physician's Standpoint." Miss Mary Wilson read a splendid paper on "The Health League from a Layman's Standpoint." Her address was very interesting and contained many practical experiences in connection with the work of the Health League.

Slides showing the progress of visiting nursing since Florence Nightingale to the present time were operated by Mr. Elmer Heckett, and each slide was very interestingly explained by Rev. W. B. Campbell, of the First M. E. church, South.

The evening session was better attended than the afternoon. The feature of the evening session was the beautiful playing of Miss Elizabeth Harbour on the piano, who rendered several excellent selections. Mrs. W. H. Campbell, wife of Rev. W. H. Campbell, pastor of the First M. E. church, South, delighted the audience with a very catchy little reading, "The Little Hotel Keeper." Mrs. Campbell showed much talent in her work and was well applauded.

The speaker of the evening, Dr. J. L. Whittenberg, Health Officer of Jefferson county, delivered an illustrated lecture which opened the eyes of many to the conditions of their fellow men.

The entire program was exceedingly interesting and entertaining and closed one of the most successful years in the history of the Health League. Following is the program: "Health League from a Layman's Standpoint"—Miss Mary Wilson.

Slides illustrating the work of a visiting nurse from Florence Nightingale to the present time—Rev. W. B. Campbell.

Evening Program.

Invocation—Rev. J. H. Fielding.
Music—"Beautiful Home Danube Waltz"—(Strauss Schulz Elver)—Miss Elizabeth Harbour.

Illustrated Lecture—Dr. J. L. Whittenberg.

Music—"Rigoberto Paraphrase"—(Galsz) —Miss Elizabeth Harbour.

Reading—"The Little Hotel Keeper"—Mrs. W. H. Campbell.

Music—Selected—Miss Elizabeth Harbour.

LIMESTONE LUMBER COMPANY.

In this issue of The Ledger will be found the advertisement of the Limestone Lumber Company, which recently took over the Mathews mill.

This firm is singularly well fitted to handle everything in the lumber line, and besides possessing every facility, the members of the firm are thoroughly familiar with the business.

Mr. C. C. Dohing, the president of the company, has for years been identified with the timber business and his wide and varied experience assures the success of the manufacturing end. Mr. McAtee Case and Mr. Douglas McDowell, members of the firm, have been in the general contracting business and are conversant with the needs and requirements of builders and contractors.

The company is prepared to execute any and all orders, large or small, and the efficiency of the gentlemen behind the concern is an assurance that their patrons will get what they want when they want it.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all our relatives, neighbors and friends for the kindness and sympathy shown us in our late sorrow and our great loss of beloved husband and father, George Walengford. Especially do we thank the preachers for their consoling words and all for the beautiful floral tributes; also we thank the undertaker, Mr. John Porter. THE BEREAVED FAMILY.

THOMAS E. DEVINE INJURED.

Wednesday morning, while plowing in the street in front of his home, on East Second street, little Thomas Edward Devine, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Devine, fell on the blade of a hoe, cutting a nasty gash in his forehead. Dr. Woodson Taubee was summoned and found it necessary to take several stitches to close the wound. The little fellow is resting easily this morning.

Bert McClinton will be at Parker & Riley's Livery Stable on Monday, July 5, to buy mules.

Colonel Kemper "Felix" Mitchell, one of Uncle Sam's faithful mail carriers, who has been spending a few weeks with the Hickson boys at Crab Orchard, Ky., returned home Wednesday afternoon and is again on the job. While away he helped the boys carve out a few hammer handles and wooden batons, thus making enough to defray his expenses. He also helped to coach the Crab Orchard baseball team.

START ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN.

The Mid-City Company, of this city, has started a large advertising campaign. At present they have a large auto touring the country adjacent to Mason, which is decorated with a sign showing the merits of their product. This will be followed by other novel features.

Rural Mail Carrier Hyron Rudy, who has been confined to his room for some time with an infected foot, is somewhat better and will soon be on his route again.

SWIMMING.

Now that the summer has fairly started, our thoughts naturally turn to boating, fishing and like sports the enjoyment of which takes us away from the heat of the city during many a sultry afternoon.

Whether it be boating, fishing or bathing at the bar that attracts us, swimming will play its part, and we venture a few suggestions concerning that sport which, while it is a pleasure and a splendid healthy exercise, often becomes a necessity and sometimes is dangerous if certain established rules concerning the water are not observed.

Every one should be able to swim, not alone for the joy that is to be gained from it and the splendid exercise that it affords, but it may at any moment become a very valuable accomplishment in rendering assistance to a less fortunate member of a boating, fishing or bathing party, who has fallen overboard or gone out beyond his depth.

Every animal but man, without exception, if thrown into the water will swim to a more or less extent without teaching, but man, possessing the power of reason, realizes the danger and really drowns himself in his frantic efforts to escape. Self-possession is nine-tenths of the law of swimming, and even man could keep himself afloat, at least until help arrived, if, upon finding himself out of his depth, he would leave his fate to his natural instinct, and forget that he has never been taught to swim. Such self-possession is probably too much to ask of the ordinary individual and man must, therefore, be taught to swim.

Children should be taught to swim when quite young, between the ages of six and fourteen years is the best time, for at that age they are quick to learn and swimming is an art which, when once learned, is never forgotten. A great deal might be learned from printed instructions, but a few personal lessons from a good swimmer will accomplish more than all the printed or written lessons in the world, and we advise those who desire to learn, to arrange with some good swimmer to give them a few suggestions.

Whether you are a good swimmer or not, there is always an element of danger in going into the water, and these precautions should be observed by both the trained swimmer and the beginner. For convenience we shall list them as a series of "don'ts."

Don't enter the water when you are too warm.

Don't dive into the water unless you know that it is free from obstructions and you are familiar with its depth.

Don't go in swimming too soon after eating. It is well to wait an hour after eating before going into the water.

Don't jump into the water feet first unless you have first cooled your head. This often causes cramps or faintness if the heart is at all weak.

Don't push another person under the water. He may not expect the ducking, get a mouthful of water and strangle.

Don't take a person out in a boat or canoe unless he can swim.

Don't let your children go bathing unless they are accompanied by a good swimmer.

Don't let children under twelve years of age go bathing more than three times a week, and never let them stay in the water over an hour.

And above all, whatever the emergency, don't lose your head.

Miss Anne says the other day at a tea she sat down in a chair which wasn't present and she'll be dinged if it was as funny as folks seem to think.

The slow-witted fellow often gets a reputation for being good-natured because he can not think of the wrong thing to say quick enough.

The person who waits for a second thought to guide his footsteps may not be able to get out of the way of the honking auto.

The old-time dandies may come back, but it is doubtful if it will ever be in order again for a man to part his hair in the middle.

Surely the doctors are having a hard time of it; now the watermelon famine is coming to reduce their income.

Bell Boy won at Latonia at 215 to 1. Every one should have tipped Bell Boy.

Seemed Longer.

George Bernard Shaw was invited by a friend one night to hear a string quartet from Italy. Expecting a treat he accepted the invitation. Throughout the program he sat with a stony look on his face.

The friend, to draw a little praise from him, said: "Mr. Shaw, those men have been playing together for twelve years."

"Twelve years?" said the other in incredulous voice. "Surely, we've been here longer than that."

ment in the plumb by which the Latin city became the mistress of the world. The Via Flaminia terminated here, and the Via Aemilia started at this port. The best of military roads linked it to the master city.

"Augustus honored the city with a triumphal arch and a massive bridge of Istrian marble. In the forum here, Julius Caesar fired the enthusiasm of his soldiers after crossing the neighboring Rubicon, on his march against Rome and her senate. Early in the sixth century, the troops were stayed without the gates of Rimini's fortifications, and, later Rimini, became one of the five-city league, which included Pesaro, Fano, Sinigaglia and Ancona."

ANCONA.

Washington, D. C.—Ancona, the seaport bombarded by the Austrians during their first raid upon the Italian coast, forms the subject of today's National Geographic Society's war primer, which reads:

"After Venice the most important city along the Italian coast of the Adriatic sea is Ancona, which was visited by the Austrian fleet immediately following Italy's declaration of war. It is also a port capable of strong defense, its forts being thoroughly modern and well placed on the semi-circular heights that surround the city. Its harbor, the finest on the southwestern coast of the Adriatic, and one of the best possessed by Italy, has been the object of costly engineering improvement from the days of Grecian settlement down to the present day. The harbor basin is an oval about half a mile in diameter.

"Venice lies 138 miles away to the northwestward, by direct water route, while Rome lies 132 miles to the southwest. The town is contained between two extremities of a rocky promontory, Monte Astagno to the south and Monte Ganso to the north. On these heights are formidable harbor defenses. The city, itself, is the headquarters for the Italian Seventh army corps. Railways connect the port with Brindisi and all the seaside cities to the south. It also has rail connections on trunk-lines with Rome and with Bologna.

"Ancona is the bean from which chocolate is made; coco is Spanish slang for head and at last the error has been traced back and corrected."

"Hereafter we will follow as before and do as Mr. Wooley tells us. We will grate coco, and not coco, over our sunnier berries, use it in frostings and cool and drink the milk from the inside of the coconut whenever we are fortunate enough to secure milky ones.

Market reports say that great quantities of coconuts are to be sold by commission men this season as many imported fruits are difficult to secure this season.

Mr. Wooley says that coco butter is better than grandma's apple butter and richer than Jersey cream butter. His recipe for making it is to squeeze the milk from fresh shredded coconut and simmer it with sugar to taste, until it becomes thick. If we ever get really juicy coconuts we will try it, Mr. Wooley.

RIMINI.

Washington, D. C.—Among the seaports recently visited by the Austrian fleet, Rimini, ancient Ariminum, the Adriatic seaport opposite the diminutive republic of San Marino, is a city of typical Italian charm, a place intimately associated with the big events of early history, fascinating for the strange romances lived within its bounds, and filled with memories of those absorbing contradictions that go to make up the Italian temperament.

This little port forms the subject of today's study in war geography issued by the National Geographic Society at Washington.

"Rimini, just below Pola, the Austrian naval base across the Adriatic, once an Umbrian colony, then an Etruscan port, and later acquired by Rome as a base against the Gauls, is a picturesque monument to the past rather than a place of present large importance.

When growing Rome met Cathage for the mastery of the maritime world, Rimini became an important naval port. Here was stationed a garrison of the fleet, and from here the merchants of Dido's city were hurried on the ventures through the Adriatic and Ionian seas.

"The power of Rome reached out through this port for the control of the Mediterranean, of earth's one great mercantile sea. Rimini is not longer a point of significance strategic value to the power on the Italian peninsula, but in Roman days it was a vital element in the plumb by which the Latin city became the mistress of the world. The Via Flaminia terminated here, and the Via Aemilia started at this port. The best of military roads linked it to the master city.

"Augustus honored the city with a triumphal arch and a massive bridge of Istrian marble. In the forum here, Julius Caesar fired the enthusiasm of his soldiers after crossing the neighboring Rubicon, on his march against Rome and her senate. Early in the sixth century, the troops were stayed without the gates of Rimini's fortifications, and, later Rimini, became one of the five-city league, which included Pesaro, Fano, Sinigaglia and Ancona."

THE WAY BETWEEN GRADO AND TRIEST.

Washington, D. C.—The way between Grado and Triest lies through a remarkable country," says a National Geographic Society war primer, which describes the strange path before the invading Italians to the richest Austrian seaport. "Many chapters of little-known, but fascinating history are associated with this coastal strip at the head of the Adriatic, and its legendary lore is as rich as that of Granada. Wealthy Romans built their villas along this way during the days of the empire, and to this region many wars have sent eddies whose memories have dimmed to forgetfulness besides the main struggles fought on other fields."

"In peace times, a small steamer besides the railway, furnished communication between Grado and Triest. From the plain of the Isonzo, the way rises steadily to Nijesina, and from Nabresina falls eastwardly to the plain of Triest. In the uplands, the vintners wind in giant coils over the rugged slopes, and on every hand are panoramic pictures common to broken country. The climate is languorously southern. The gray limestone breaks through the vegetation in great masses, and the way is liberally sprinkled with stone quarries, whose numerous pits and galleries pierce deep into the rocks, and whose enormous debris piles accentuate the pack marks of the hills. This torn land is immediately before the advancing Italians."

"Water-worn holes in the porous rock, and mysterious grottoes and mouths to the underworld, characteristic of the Istrian region are found here. Added to the difficulties of the way are many funnel-shaped depressions which occur in the midst of the regular slopes, often several hundred feet across and 200 feet deep. There is a wonderful maze of narrow abysses, hollows, pits, caves, grottoes and quarries worked from ancient times, scattered over this path from Aquileia and Grado to Triest and its sheltered bay."

A SPRAY FOR THE EGG-PLANT LACE-BUG.

Washington, D. C.—The formula for an effective spray for destroying the eggplant lace-bug is given in a new bulletin, No. 239, of the United States Department of Agriculture, which is intended primarily for the commercial growers of eggplant. The eggplant lace-bug is practically new as a pest and is to be found from the South Atlantic coast to the southwestern states wherever the eggplant is grown on a commercial scale and the damage that it does may become very great. Near Norfolk, Va., in the summer of 1914, the injury was estimated at from 10 to 15 per cent of the entire acreage.

The ordinary truck farmer will probably confuse the lace-bug with other pests and attribute the damage done by it to aphides or plant-lice. The eggplant lace-bug, however, can be readily distinguished by its prominent lace-like hood extending back of the head and by the lace-like appearance of its wings. It is usually grayish to light brown, and about 3-16 of an inch in length.

It attacks the eggplant by laying its eggs on the under side of the leaves, where they hatch. As soon as the young emerge from the eggs they proceed to feed upon the sap of the leaves which become yellow and dry. The pests then migrate from leaf to leaf until they have become adults, when they proceed to lay eggs on other plants. There is a possibility of several generations in a season.

In investigating the best methods of controlling these pests it has been found that a spray consisting of eight pounds of fish-oil soap to fifty gallons of water killed all of the nymphs and about 95 per cent of the adults. No effect upon the adults was produced by a spray weaker than six pounds of soap to fifty gallons of water.

Chautauqua Lecturer Who Has Studied Labor Problems In the Laboratories of Living Men

GEORGE L. McNUTT, the "dinner-pail man," who is to lecture here Chautauqua week on "The Hunger Clutch," has been upon the platform for years, and few men have had more return dates. McNutt was a farmer boy, Hoosier born. A student for a year at Princeton university, a graduate of Wabash college, he became a Presbyterian preacher at Urbana, Ill. To the west of the church was the University of Illinois, with its army of students; to the east the shops of the Big Four railroad, with its 500 dinner-pail men. Thus from the first the preacher was confronted with the practical relations of culture and democracy. After preaching fifteen years in Urbana, Indianapolis, New York city and the far west Mr. McNutt entered the University of Hard Knocks to study first hand social and economic questions. Beginning as a roustabout in an iron mill, the preacher worked through Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York, Boston and through New England up to Maine. For seven years the man from the pail, and his wife and boys, lived the life of the unskilled day laborer's family, studying the problems and conditions of the laboring people in the laboratories of living men. Mr. McNutt's lecture here will be one of the features of the Chautauqua.

PRESIDENT EXPECTED TO OUTLINE DEFINITE COURSE IN MEX.

ICC.

Washington, June 29.—That President Wilson will soon take a definite step towards the settlement of Mexico's tangled affairs is the opinion of officials close to the administration. Officials say that the time has arrived when circumstances require that the President make known his intention.

The opinion of these officials is that there are two practical courses open to the President.

First, to increase the pressure on General Carranza to induce him to negotiate with General Villa and the leaders of the other faction.

Second, to eliminate Carranza personally from consideration and attempt to bring together some of the strongest men in his and other factions with General Villa's party for the purpose of holding a convention to select a candidate for President. This candidate would be assured of the moral support of the United States and recognition by this government.

Witnesses testified that some 300 men shipped from here to New York for ultimate service in the British army were given medical examinations at 17 State street, next to the British consulate in New York. Frank Cook, one of the recruits arrested in New York, said that at this number, in room 104, a "Captain Roche or Roach" took charge of the recruits.

Indications thus far were said to be that more than $100,000 was spent in the California recruiting.

TOMASVOW CAPTURED.

Vienna, June 29.—Tomasvow, in Russian Poland, has been captured by the Austro-German forces, according to announcement made by the Austrian foreign office tonight.

North of Kamionka nearly thirty miles northeast of Lubomia, the Austrians repulsed a Russian attack which was made in great force.

We are authorized to announce that the British army were given medical examinations at 17 State street, next to the British consulate in New York. Frank Cook, one of the recruits arrested in New York, said that at this number, in room 104, a "Captain Roche or Roach" took charge of the recruits.

NEW USE FOR BEER KEGS

MISISON FARMERS PUT THEM ON THEIR HARVESTING MACHINES TO REPLACE THE NARROW WHEELS.

Out west they do things, especially in Champ Clark's "Show me" state. When wheat harvest time came this year it was accompanied by some showers of rain; and every day the good farmer woke up he was greeted with more showers, until the soil became so soft it was impossible to get at the matured wheat with even a scythe.

What would have been a huge problem to almost any other state, the hound-dawg followers got busy and in a comparatively easy way solved it in a jiffy.

At St. Louis they have a factory where beer kegs are made that stand the strain, and there the farmers went and purchased a number of eight-gallon kegs.

Through the end of each keg they bored a two-inch hole, and onto their harvesting machines they had strapped a piece of iron long enough to go through the keg, and with these wide-tread wheels they proceeded to harvest and save their wheat crop.

The narrow wheels of the harvesting machines sank into the soft soil and it was impossible to move the machine, and the beer kegs would not sink or become mired.

A gentleman visiting in this section from the "show me" state is authority for this statement, and should the Mason county farmer ever become confronted with a like condition, The Ledger thought it better that it should let him know the beer keg's place on the farm.

HOW TO WASH PALM BEACH SUITS.

In answer to several inquiries, we publish a few directions as to how to wash Palm Beach suits, furnished by a large number of those clothes.

Use warm water and any good soap, but in following the details enumerated below, the very best results will be obtained:

1. Use any pure soap, such as you have been accustomed to using when washing linens and similar tub fabrics.

2. Do not boil.

3. Use warm water is best.

4. Do not rub soap on the garment.

5. Wash by hand. Do not rub garment on the board.

6. Rinse thoroughly in luke warm water.

7. Stretch lengthwise, indoors, to dry.

RIVER NEWS.

Gauge 5.9 feet and stationary. The recent rains have put a stop to a further fall for a while.

Steamer Courier passed up this morning for Pomeroy, heavily laden with freight.

Steamer Greendale will be the up-the-river packet from Cincinnati to Pomeroy today.

Steamer Tucomi will be the down-the-river packet for Cincinnati from Pomeroy today.

The river at the present time is in a very muddy condition, as a result of the recent rains.

ARREST DISTURBERS.

The police arrested several youths Wednesday evening about 10:30 o'clock near Donovan's saloon, on East Third street, on the charge of breach of the peace.

The offenders will probably be given hearing in Police Court today.

PURCHASES SALOON.

Mr. Fred Wells has purchased the saloon on Market street operated by Add Moorefield.

Mr. Wells will remodel the place and promises to give the public the best there is in the liquor business.

The newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Wallingford, have returned from their honeymoon through the east and are spending few days with Mrs. Wallingford's relatives in the county before taking up their residence permanently in Louisville.

COUNTY COURT.

The resignation of Miss Lucy Lee as administratrix of the estate of her mother, Mrs. Jane T. Lee, was accepted and the Equitable Trust Company, of Covington, was appointed in her place.

The offenders will probably be given hearing in Police Court today.

W. H. Williams, colored, was appointed administrator of the estate of W. H. and Laura Gifford, deceased, with W. D. Cochran as surety on the bond.

Fat Maher, Nat Langhorn and William Whaley were appointed appraisers of the estate of W. H. and Laura Gifford, deceased.

Major J. Wesley Lee is busy issuing saloon licenses for the coming half-year ending January 1, 1916. Just when the final decision in the wet-dry case will be rendered is doubtful. It may be days or it may be months, hence the action of Mayor Lee.

The Washington Opera House presented a fine line of films, but the vaudeville again was the headliner of the performance. Miss Kathleen Kuhly, the Indian maid, who plays the part, was fine and at every show she was called back. This is her second appearance here this season, which speaks well for her popularity.

Harker & Walters, a team which had something new in their sketch, delighted the patrons at every performance.

Their act is full of good humor and is delivered in a pleasing manner.

ATTENTION, REGULARS.

All members of the Maysville Regulars are requested to meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Ledger office.

Chief of Police James Mackey is confined to his home this week with a sudden attack of illness. Officer William Tolle is acting as chief in his absence.

We are in Maysville every day with the same thoroughly equipped place we have always had. We have all modern instruments for examining eyes. We make the glass in our own shop while you wait.

1916 Overland $750

—but they can't meet the price.

When the new 1916 model Overland was announced and the price lowered $325, selling a car for $750 that is essentially the same as the one which sold last season for $1,075, consternation spread among "would-be" competitors.

They can't meet the price and maintain the quality.

What will they do? One of the manufacturers instead of meeting the price admitted their inability to do so, and instead, put two more cylinders on the motor, making it a "six," and raised the price $35. This increase in price will probably cover the actual additional manufacturing cost of adding the two cylinders. Will you pay $325 for two extra cylinders that probably do not cost the manufacturer $35 to build?

And there's no High Tension Magneto with these cars either. Think it over. Then have us demonstrate the Overland.
